Teacher's Notes

Introduction to the series

The texts

Each book in the series introduces pupils to a wide range of text types, including fiction, poetry and non-fiction. The books are carefully graded according to readability and are incremental in difficulty. The books provide a valuable complement to any other resources or series currently being used. The fact that each unit is structured in the same way makes the books accessible and easy to use.

The related activities

The related activities support the development of essential reading skills, at Text Level, encouraging pupils to read at different levels including literal, inferential and evaluative comprehension skills. The stimulus passages are also used to help pupils develop skills at Sentence Level (grammar and punctuation) and Word Level (spelling and vocabulary).

The Skills Scope and Sequence Chart

The Skills, Scope and Sequence Chart (on pages 2–3) provides an immediate overview of text types included and skills being developed at Text, Sentence and Word Level. This chart is very helpful for planning purposes.

Using the books

To gain maximum benefit from the books, it is suggested that they are used systematically, working through each unit one at a time, in the given order. However, the books may also be used flexibly, selecting units as desired to complement other work being done in class.

Tackling the texts

The stimulus texts may be tackled in a variety of ways. They could be used for shared reading. This could take the form of the teacher reading the whole text to the class or inviting different pupils to contribute as appropriate. Certain texts e.g. poems, provide an ideal opportunity for whole class participation. Alternatively the pupils could be asked to read the text silently or read it aloud in pairs or in groups. Whatever approach is used, to make the most of each text it should be discussed to ensure pupils have a good grasp of the literal meaning of the text and any vocabulary they may not have met before. The related Text Level activities may initially be done as a class verbally to help pupils reflect on the texts.

Tackling the related activities

The related activities at Text, Sentence and Word Level may be used systematically or selectively as desired. However they are used, it is suggested that prior to working any activity there is some discussion with the pupils to ensure they understand what is required of them.

Unit 1

Seeing things differently

How can you describe an elephant?

Once there were six blind men who lived in a village in India. One day they were talking to each other. The first man said, 'There is an elephant in the next village.'

'What's an elephant?' the second man asked.

The first man replied, 'I don't know.'

He asked all the other men but none of them knew. So they went to the next village to find out.

When they arrived the first blind man touched the elephant. He couldn't see it but he could feel it. He felt its trunk. 'An elephant is like a snake,' he said. 'It's long and it's rubbery.'

The second man touched the elephant. He couldn't see it but he could feel it. He felt its tusks. 'No, no – an elephant is like a knife,' he said. 'It's sharp and it's smooth.'

When the third man touched the elephant he felt its ear. 'Now I know what an elephant is like,' he exclaimed. 'It's like a leaf, big and flat.'

It was the fourth man's turn. He touched its leg. 'No, you are all wrong,' he cried. 'It's like a tree. It's round and hard.'

The fifth man felt the side of the elephant with his hand. 'It's just like a wall,' he said. 'It's high and it's wide.'

Lastly, the sixth man touched the elephant. He felt its tail. 'Well, I think it's like a rope. It's long and thin.'

Each blind man had a different idea of what an elephant was like, and they began to argue. Each man thought that he was right.

The elephant got so fed up with the argument that he said, 'Excuse me. You are all partly right. My trunk is like a snake. And my tusks are like knives. My ears are like big leaves and my legs are like trees. My sides are like walls and my tail is like a rope. You should listen to each other, because you all have something useful to say. Then you will not need to argue.'

The elephant turned and walked away. The blind men felt very foolish. They shook hands and promised to listen to each other in the future.

TEXT LEVEL

- 1 Write a sentence about each blind man. Say what part of the elephant each man touched.
- 2 How do you know the men could not see? What clues are there?
- 3 Why did each man think the elephant was something different?
- 4 Why did the blind men argue with each other?
- 5 What do you think we can learn from the story?

SENTENCE LEVEL

Choose a suitable adjective to complete each sentence.

loud sour smart long heavy rusty sharp delicious high strong

- 1 The trunk of the elephant was _____ .

WORD LEVEL

The ph words and their meanings are muddled. Write them correctly.

- 1 elephant the son of someone's sister or brother
- 2 phantom the letters of our language arranged in order
- 3 telephone a large four-legged animal with a trunk
- 4 alphabet a victory or success
- 5 orphan a ghost
- 6 triumph a child whose parents have died
- 7 nephew something used for speaking to someone far away

Unit 2

I want to be an astronaut

What do you want to be when you are grown up?

I want to be an astronaut
And shoot off into space;
I want to float like a silver bird
Above the human race.

I want to ride a rocket,
Computerised (with lights);
I want to go beyond the stars
I've seen on winter nights.

I want the Earth to watch me
On their TV screens;
I want them all to see me go
Amongst fantastic scenes.

I want to be an astronaut
And go to Saturn soon;
I want to step onto Mars
And the dark side of the Moon.

I want to spend my holidays
In a rocket that I'll fly;
I want to be an astronaut
Who waves our world goodbye.

I want to see the other worlds
And boys that aren't like me;
I want to see the strangest lands
And still be home for tea.

Peter Thabit Jones

- 1 a What is the title of the poem? b Who wrote it?
c How many verses does it have?
- 2 Write the word that rhymes with: a space b lights c screens
d soon e fly f me
- 3 Name three places the writer wants to visit.
- 4 Is the writer a boy or girl? What clues are there?
- 5 'The poem is about a boy's dreams.' Do you think this is true? Why?
- 6 Write something you liked (or disliked) about the poem.

Unit 3

Esperanto

Can you speak Japanese? Can you speak Russian? Throughout the world there are thousands of different languages. Wouldn't life be a lot easier if there were just one language which we all spoke?

For many years people have been trying to create a simple universal language that would serve all over the world as a common means of communication. In the last three hundred years, more than seven hundred such languages have been suggested. The most successful and the most popular of these is a language called Esperanto.

It was invented by Ludwig Zamenhof, who lived in Poland. When he was growing up he saw that people from different backgrounds who lived in Poland had lots of difficulties communicating with each other. This often led to disagreements. Ludwig felt that a common language would help them understand each other better and agree with each other. So he began working on a common international language. He started his work while he was still at school!

In 1887, he published some information about his new language. He did not use his real name. He used the name Dr Esperanto (which means 'one who hopes'). Soon people from all over the world became interested in his language, called 'Esperanto'.

Today, Esperanto is spoken by about eight million people throughout the world. Many governments and international organisations recognise it in many ways. Esperanto is often used on radio broadcasts from official government stations.

TEXT LEVEL

- 1 What have people been trying to create for many years?
- 2 Who invented Esperanto?
- 3 Why did Ludwig Zamenhof feel a common language was necessary?
- 4 What does 'Esperanto' mean?
- 5 How many people speak Esperanto today?
- 6 What does the word 'universal' mean?
- 7 Why do you think people all over the world speak different languages?
- 8 Do you think Esperanto is a good idea? Explain your reasons.

Unit 4

Katie and the dinosaurs

What would you do if you came face to face with a dinosaur?

'Come and look, Grandma, come and see the dinosaurs!' said Katie.

Katie loved the Natural History Museum, and she wanted to show her Grandma everything.

'They're just a load of old bones,' said Grandma.

'Well, you're really old,' said Katie. 'There must have been dinosaurs alive when you were little.'

'I'm not that old!' snorted Grandma, looking for somewhere to sit down. 'Why don't you go and have a look at your horrible dinosaurs while I have forty winks,' she said.

'They're not horrible,' sniffed Katie. 'But I do wish they weren't just skeletons.' And she skipped off on her own, taking her picnic lunch with her.

Katie saw spiky dinosaurs, fishy dinosaurs, flying dinosaurs, horned dinosaurs, long dinosaurs ...

She closed her eyes and tried to imagine they were alive. She thought they must have been very frightening with their sharp teeth and claws.

Next to one of the dinosaurs was a corridor. Katie set off down it to make sure she hadn't missed anything worth seeing.

The corridor was long and dark, and there was no one in sight. Katie began to feel scared. She looked for a 'Way Out' sign, but there didn't seem to be one. She was lost.

'Now what do I do?' said Katie crossly.

She came to a big door with a notice on it that said:
NO ENTRY

'I'll just take a quick look,' said Katie and she opened the door and stepped through ...

TEXT LEVEL

- 1 What sort of museum did Katie visit?
- 2 Who did Katie go with?
- 3 What sort of dinosaurs did Katie see?
- 4 Why did Katie begin to feel scared in the corridor?
- 5 a What did the notice on the door say?
b Why do you think the notice was written in capital letters?
- 6 Do you think Katie was sensible to open the door? Give a reason.
- 7 What do you think Katie saw when she opened the door?
- 8 What do you think the following things mean:
a 'They're just a load of old bones.'
b 'forty winks'?

SENTENCE LEVEL

Match the beginning of each sentence with a suitable ending.

- | | |

Dinosaurs scare me. I try to score goals when I play football.

3 Choose either ire or ure to finish each word.

- a f____ b c____ c h____ d w____ e p____ f s____

Unit 5

The blind boy and the colours

Can blind people see colours?

I asked the boy who cannot see,
'What is colour like?'
'Green,' said he,
'Is like the sound of leaves
When the wind blows through
The forest;
Running water is blue;
And red, I think,
Is like the sound of a trumpet;
The smell of roses is pink;

Unit 7

The miracle

Have you ever won a competition?

Charlie entered the shop and laid the damp fifty pence on the counter.

'One Wonka's Whipple-Scrumptious Fudgemallow Delight,' he said, remembering how much he had loved the one he had on his birthday.

The man behind the counter looked fat and well fed. He had big fat lips and a very fat neck. The fat around his neck bulged out all around the top of his collar like a rubber ring. He turned and reached behind him for the chocolate bar, then he turned back again and handed it to Charlie. Charlie grabbed it and quickly tore off the wrapper and took an enormous bite. Then he took another ... and another ... an oh, the joy of being able to cram large pieces of something sweet and solid into one's mouth!

'You look like you wanted that one, sonny,' the shopkeeper said pleasantly.

Charlie nodded, his mouth bulging with chocolate.

The shopkeeper put Charlie's change on the counter. 'Take it easy,' he said. 'It'll give you tummy-ache if you swallow it like that without chewing.'

Charlie went on wolfing the chocolate. He couldn't stop. And in less than half a minute, the whole thing had disappeared down his throat. He was quite out of breath, but he felt marvelously, extraordinarily happy. He reached out to take the change. Then he paused. His eyes were just above the level of the counter. They were staring at the silver coins lying there. The coins were all five-penny pieces. There were just nine of them altogether. Surely it wouldn't matter if he spent just one more ...

'I think,' he said quietly, 'I think ... I'll have just one more of those chocolate bars. The same kind as before, please.'

'Why not?' the fat shopkeeper said, reaching behind him again and taking another Whipple-Scrumptious Fudgemallow Delight from the shelf. He laid it on the counter.

Charlie picked it up and tore off the wrapper ... and suddenly ... from underneath the wrapper ... there came the brilliant flash of gold.

Charlie's heart stood still.

'It's a Golden Ticket!' screamed the shopkeeper, leaping about a foot in the air. 'You've got a Golden Ticket! You've found the last Golden Ticket! Hey, would you believe it! Come and look at this, everybody! The kid's found Wonka's last Golden Ticket! There it is! Right there in his hands!'

- 1 Who are the two main characters in the passage?
- 2 What is the setting (where does the story take place)?
- 3 What is the name of the author of the story?
- 4 Describe the way the shopkeeper looked.
- 5 What is a 'Wonka's Whipple-Scrumptious Fudgemallow Delight'?
- 6 Why did Charlie grab the chocolate bar and tear off the wrapper?
- 7 Why did the shopkeeper tell Charlie to take it easy?
- 8 How much did each chocolate bar cost?
- 9 What was special about the second bar of chocolate?
- 10 What was the 'miracle' in the story?

SENTENCE LEVEL

- 1 Write each sentence again. Change the underlined verb into the past tense.
 - a Charlie keeps calm. Charlie kept calm.
 - b I buy some chocolate. c I laugh at your jokes. d I see an accident.
 - e The man eats the bread. f The boy jumps with joy.
- 2 Write each sentence again. Change the underlined verb into the future tense.
 - a I caught a cold. I will catch a cold.
 - b I won a competition. c I stopped for a while.
 - d We left our books at school. e The wind blew. f Charlie fell off his bike.

WORD LEVEL

- 1 Make some compound words like the example.

a birth + day = birthday	b shop + keeper = _____
c heart + beat = _____	d sea + side = _____
e farm + yard = _____	f hand + writing = _____
g time + table = _____	i dish + cloth = _____
j tooth + brush = _____	k hand + bag = _____
- 2 Match words in Set A with words in Set B to make compound words.

Set A	break cup butter rain eye post
-------	--

Set B	head sight fast card fly bow
-------	--

Unit 8

Roald Dahl

Have you ever read any Roald Dahl stories? Which story is your favourite?

Roald Dahl was one of the most successful writers of children's books who ever lived. He sold millions of books all over the world. He is so famous there is even a Roald Dahl Museum you can visit. Many of his books have been made into films and videos.

Roald Dahl was born in 1916 in Wales. His father was rich but he died when Roald was very young. Roald's mother brought him up. He hated school and left as soon as he could. Roald went to Africa to seek his fortune, and he spent two years working for an oil company.

In 1939 Roald joined the Air Force as a pilot, but he had a bad crash in the desert. His injuries made him limp for the rest of his life. After this Roald went to America where he wrote a story about his adventures as a pilot. It was so good it was published in a magazine.

Roald met and married an American film star called Patricia Neal. They bought a house in England and had five children.

Between 1960 and 1965 three terrible things happened. Theo, one of his children, was hit by a taxi in New York and was badly hurt. Luckily he recovered. However, Olivia, one of Roald's daughters, died of a rare illness. Soon after this, his wife also had a serious illness. It took her two years to get completely better.

Gradually Roald became more and more successful. He always did his writing in an old shed at the back of his house. He always sat in the same old armchair with a wooden board on his lap. 'One of the nice things about being a writer,' he once said, 'is that all you need is what you've got in your head and a pencil and a bit of paper.'

In 1983 Roald won a big prize for his book The BFG (The Big Friendly Giant). The drawings were done by the famous illustrator, Quentin Blake. During his life Roald wrote many famous books such as Charlie and the Chocolate Factory, Matilda, Fantastic Mr Fox, The Twits and James and the Giant Peach.

After his death in 1990, Roald left money to help children and adults with serious illnesses and with problems with reading and writing.

TEXT LEVEL

- 1 Why is Roald Dahl famous?
- 2 Is it true that Roald Dahl loved school?

Unit 9

Postcards from Egypt

When do people send postcards?
Why do they send them?

Dear Rod,

In Cairo we buy food from street stalls. Dad pays with Egyptian money. Dad likes falafel. They're made with beans fried with spices and shaped into little balls.

Love,
Walter

P.S. We got some fresh figs and mangoes from the market. I love mangoes. They are big and sweet and juicy.

Dear Mandy,

We're staying in Cairo. It's the biggest city in Egypt. We went to a market called a souk. Mum bought some gold and silver jewellery.

Love,
Stephen

P.S. We can't read the newspapers here! Most people in Egypt speak and write in Arabic. The letters look different from ours, and people read from the right side of the page to the left.

Dear Leroy,

We're on a big boat. It is travelling down the River Nile. Boats carry goods on the river as well. We saw a boat carrying cotton. Small sailing boats are called feluccas.

Your friend

Wesley

P.S. We saw a train going along beside the Nile. Mum and I like the boats better. They are cooler than the trains and buses.

Dear Bob,

Not everything in Egypt is old! We came to see the Aswan Dam. People built it across the Nile to hold the river back. There's a big lake on the other side of the dam.

Love,
Bruce

P.S. My uncle says that the water in the dam is used to make electricity. The Aswan dam is nearly four kilometres across - that's more than two miles.

Unit 10

The danger of being stubborn

If someone is stubborn it means that they refuse to change their ideas once they have made up their mind. Do you think this is a good or bad thing?

Max and his wife Mary went to bed one night, and left the front door open.

'Get up and close the door,' Max said to his wife.

'No, you go and close it,' said Mary to Max.

'I can't do that,' said Max. 'I said you must close it, and I never go back on my word.'

'But I never go back on my word, either,' said Mary.

They agreed that the first person to speak should close the door. They lay in silence. The wind howled through the house. They shivered in the cold but neither of them spoke.

A robber saw the open door and entered the house. He took all the copper saucepans and the silver candlesticks. Mary did not say a word. He took all the books and the clock. Max did not say a word, either.

The robber lit a fire and cooked a big meal. Then he took the table and the chairs; the stove and the carpets. He took the bookcases and the curtains; the wallpaper and the window frames. Max and Mary remained silent.

The robber left, but did not close the door.

The next morning, Mary went out early to find food. Max sat on the floor. A travelling barber saw the door open and walked in.

'Do you need a haircut?' he asked.

Max said nothing so the barber cut his hair.

'Well, how do you like it?' he said when he had finished. Max did not answer, so the barber cut off some more.

'You know, it might be better to shave it all off completely,' the barber said. Max did not want his head shaved, but he was not going to speak. The barber shaved his head.

'Now,' said the barber, 'you must pay me.'

Max had no money so he said nothing.

'What! You won't pay me?' shouted the barber. He went to the fireplace, gathered some soot and smeared it all over Max's face. Still, Max did not say a word. The barber stormed out of the house, leaving the door open.

Some time later, Mary returned. She saw her husband sitting on the floor, with a bald head and a sooty face, and screamed.

'My poor Max! What's happened?'

Max stood up, triumphant. 'You spoke first!' he said. 'Now go and close the door.'

Copy this and fill in the gaps with sensible words.

One night Max and his wife (1)_____ to bed, and left the front (2)_____ open. They (3)_____ that the first person to speak should close the door. A (4)_____ saw the open door and entered the house. He (5)_____ lots of things from the house. Max and Mary stayed (6)_____ all the time. When the robber left he did not (7)_____ the door. The next morning, Mary went out to get some (8)_____. A (9)_____ saw the door open and walked in. He cut off all Max's (10)_____. When Max did not pay him, the barber became (11)_____. He put some (12)_____ all over Max's face. When Mary returned she saw her (13)_____ and screamed. Max told his wife to close the door because she spoke first!

SENTENCE LEVEL

What did each person say? Copy and complete each sentence.

Pass me the ball. Open your mouth wide. I fly in rockets.

Unit 11

Soraya's blanket

What would you miss most if you went to live in another country?

Soraya lived in a village called Darwaza in India. Most of the time it was hot and sunny. The hot weather meant that Soraya could sleep on the roof of her flat-topped house. She loved the cool air and the bright stars of those nights.

Grandmother sang Soraya to sleep or told her the stories that she was told as a child. Soraya loved her grandmother and spent all her time with her except when she was at school.

One day, Soraya realised things were about to change. Her dad explained that he had heard from Uncle Ashraf and Auntie Shaheen in Britain.

Their business was doing well and they needed help to run it. It was an exciting idea and Soraya's mum and dad were looking forward to joining the family business.

Soraya felt mixed up. She was excited to think of a new country and glad that she would see her cousins again. She was sad, too, because she knew she would be leaving her family and friends behind in the village. Tears filled her eyes as she hugged and kissed Grandmother 'Goodbye'.

As the plane landed, Soraya's head filled with new sights and sounds. Her cousins were at the airport to meet her and show her round her new town. The sadness left her.

She began to go to school with her cousins. It was hard at first to make sense of it all but Soraya liked it there. Oh, but it was so cold! She dreamed about the warm nights sitting next to Grandmother under the stars.

A few weeks after they arrived, Soraya's mum and dad wrote to Grandmother to tell her about their new home. Soraya wrote something too. She wrote, 'I love and miss you, Naanee, especially at bedtime.'

Weeks passed. Then one day the postman handed Soraya a parcel with her name on it. The postmark and stamps told her it was from India. She opened it as fast as she could. Inside she found a beautiful, brightly-coloured woollen blanket. As she wrapped it around herself she found a note pinned to it. The note said, 'My Soraya, I have made this for you. Put it on your bed and think of me every night. In the blanket is my love for you. It will always keep you warm. Naanee.' Night times seemed to get warmer for Soraya from that day.

Unit 12

Rabbit and Tiger save the world

Tiger wanted to eat Rabbit more than anything else in the world!
Do you think Tiger will catch Rabbit in the story?

Narrator: Tiger was huge! Tiger was fierce! Tiger had sharp claws. Tiger had sharp teeth. Tiger had beautiful orange and black striped skin. But Tiger was not very clever. On the other hand, Rabbit was small. Rabbit had long ears. Rabbit had a funny white tail but he had a quick brain and long, strong legs. One day Rabbit was sitting in the sun. Tiger crept up behind him.

Tiger: Now I've got you!

Rabbit: Help! Help!

Narrator: Rabbit jumped out of the way just in time and ran through the jungle, across the fields and into a deep, rocky valley. Tiger chased after him.

Rabbit: Oh no! There's no way out. I'm trapped!

- Narrator: Rabbit thought quickly. He threw himself against a huge rock with his arms outstretched. He waited for Tiger to catch up.
- Tiger: You can't escape this time! I can almost taste the rabbit stew!
- Rabbit: You may eat me if you like, but first you will have to help me.
- Tiger: And why is that?
- Rabbit: Well, this rock holds up the whole world. I saw it start to roll away. Fortunately I was here to stop it. But if I move away from here, it will start rolling again – and take the whole world with it.
- Tiger: Oh dear! How terrible!
- Rabbit: Why don't you hold it up for me, and let me run and get some help?
- Tiger: What a good idea! We don't want the world to roll away!
- Narrator: So Rabbit ran off. But he didn't run for help. He ran straight home, laughing all the way. Poor Tiger was outwitted once again!

(A story from Puerto Rico)

Unit 13

Diana, the people's princess

Have you ever heard of Diana, the people's princess?
What do you know about her?

Early life

Diana Spencer was born in 1961. She lived in a big country house. Her family was very rich and knew Queen Elizabeth and other members of the British royal family. Diana always loved children. When she left school, she got a job in a kindergarten. She helped to look after young children.

Prince Charles

One day Diana met Prince Charles, the Queen's eldest son. They fell in love and when she was 19 years old, the prince asked Diana to marry him. The wedding took place in London in 1981. People came from all over the world. London was crowded. Millions of people watched the wedding on television. Some people said Diana was like a princess from a fairytale. As Charles was called the Prince of Wales, Diana became the Princess of Wales.

Having a family

In 1982 Diana had a baby son. She called him William. Two years later, in 1984, she had a second son called Harry. One day her eldest son, William, will become king.

Helping people

Diana loved meeting and being with people. She was always friendly and kind to everyone. Wherever she went crowds of people gathered to see her. People said that Diana was just like an ordinary person.

Diana was very good at raising money for people in need. She helped all sorts of people – the old, the blind and the sick. She loved helping children. Diana worked very hard and travelled thousands of miles to help people. She visited hospitals in many different countries. She said that she wanted to be 'a princess for the world.'

Her death

In Paris, on 31 August 1997, the car Diana was travelling in crashed. Diana was killed in the accident. She was only 36 years old. When Diana died, even people who had never met her were sad. The whole world was shocked at her death. Thousands of people put flowers outside her home. She was such a popular and well-loved person that more than a million people went to her funeral. Diana is buried on a small island at her home in England where she lived as a child.

Unit 14

Eating in Morocco

Have you ever visited a different country? How did people dress? What language did they speak? What sort of things did they eat?

My name is Mariam. I come from Iran. A little while ago, my brother Hassan and I went to stay with friends, in Morocco in North Africa, near the Mediterranean Sea. We stayed in the town of Fez with the Ben Moussa family. Mr Ben Moussa's first name is Mohammed, Mrs Ben Moussa is called Fatima, and their children are a boy called Samir and a girl called Amina. Most people in Morocco are Muslim, so these are Muslim names.

Fez is famous for its crafts. One of our favourite places was the market. Here we saw people making silver jewellery, blue painted pottery and furniture. There were other people dying wool and mixing kohl so that ladies could paint dark lines round the edges of their eyes.

Hassan and I both liked the food market best. There were stalls selling honey cakes and almonds, a kind of nut. Other stalls sold lamb kebabs and you could buy mint tea to drink. We saw piles of spices in the market and also delicious dried dates and figs. It was very different from our home town.

Mrs Ben Moussa is a good cook. Here is an example of what we had to eat:

For breakfast we usually had bread, butter and jam and hot milky coffee or tea. You can also buy beignets from a baker or market stall. They are made from flour, water and sugar. This is mixed together, made into balls and fried in very hot oil. Then the beignets are dipped in sugar.

Lunchtime in Morocco is a two-hour break. After lunch, people have a rest before going back to work. For lunch we normally had a stew of meat and vegetables, such as turnips and carrots. It was always cooked in a tagine. This is a dish with a big pointed lid which looks like a hat.

People eat their evening meal late in Morocco. So when children come home from school, they usually have some milky coffee and some bread and jam to keep them going.

Dinner is served at nine o'clock in the evening. It begins with soup, followed by a meat stew. There is also a big round loaf of traditional bread to eat. Everybody drinks mint tea afterwards. It is delicious and helps you to digest your food.

On special occasions, people cook pastilla. It looks like a cake made of layers of thin, flaky pastry. But between each layer there is minced meat, sugar, almonds and spices. It tastes very good.

Here is a recipe for Mrs Ben Moussa's meat which we loved:

What you need:

1 kilo of meat (lamb is best)	a pinch of black pepper
1 finely chopped onion	some salt
5 chopped cloves of garlic	2 tablespoons of oil
the juice of three lemons	2 cups of water
2 chopped chillies

What you do:

Cut the meat into cubes.

Mix the onion, garlic, lemon juice, chillies, pepper and salt together.

Rub the mixture on the meat and leave it for an hour.

Then put the meat and water in a tagine and cover with a lid.

Put it into the oven for about two hours.

Serve it with rice or plantain.

TEXT LEVEL

- 1 a Who went to Morocco? b What town did they go to?
- 2 List some of the things Hassan and Mariam saw being made in the market.
- 3 Describe what beignets are and how they are made.
- 4 Explain what a tagine is.
- 5 Describe a typical Moroccan evening meal.
- 6 What does pastilla consist of?
- 7 a What is the recipe for? b It is written in two sections. What are these?
c Why do you think it is important to have the 'What you need' section first?
- 8 Describe some of the ways in which the daily meals in Morocco are different from those you have.

SENTENCE LEVEL

Underline and mark the subject (S), verb (V) and object (O) in each sentence.

- S V O

Unit 15 Life in space

We have sent people to the Moon in spaceships. In the future people could be living in space. What do you think space cities will be like?

Buildings

The picture shows where people would live. It doesn't look very different from modern small towns on Earth, and this is deliberate. Science-fiction films show people living in tall glass towers or living underground, but people won't want these. Throughout history, people have tried to put up buildings like the ones they know; space travellers will do the same.

The need for gravity

Gravity makes normal life possible. Nobody would want to live for a long time in a space city where everything – people and equipment – floated weightlessly around. With gravity, life in space can be like life on Earth. We can have farms and factories and houses and meeting places. A space city with gravity would be a better place to live than the Moon or the planets where there is very little gravity.

Using sunlight

The Moon is not a good place to live on. All places on the moon have 14 days of sunlight followed by 14 days of night, which makes farming impossible. The energy from the sun cannot be used very well either. In a space city, which would always have sunlight, the length of each day could be controlled. A gigantic mirror about two kilometres in diameter would float above the city. It would reflect sunlight to smaller mirrors that would direct it into the city. Shutters could be used to control when sunlight was let in. There would be sunlight all day, so crops would grow faster than on Earth. The shutters would be closed to create night-time.

Planning for a population of 10,000

The population of the city could be fixed at about 10,000 people. Farmers would be able to plan accurately how much food would be needed for this number of people. About 44 square metres of vegetable plants would be needed for each person, and just over five square metres of grassland.

Plans for a space city

The picture shows where the people could live. The city is like a huge wheel, a tube more than 150 metres in diameter, and bent into a ring which measures two kilometres across. The wheel spins gently every minute and so the people in space feel the pull of gravity just like we do on Earth.

Say if each sentence is true or false.

- 1 The picture shows how a city on Earth will look.
- 2 The city is in the shape of a huge square.
- 3 It measures two kilometres across.
- 4 The wheel spins once a minute.
- 5 This spinning of the wheel produces a feeling of weightlessness.
- 6 The Moon is a good place to live on.
- 7 Gravity makes normal life in space possible.
- 8 In the city it will be impossible to control the length of each day.
- 9 Farming will be possible in the city.
- 10 The population of the city will be around 100,000 people.

SENTENCE LEVEL

Identify the verb (V) and adverb (Adv) in each sentence.

V Adv

- 1 The wheel spins gently in space.
- 2 My uncle laughed loudly.
- 3 The old man walked slowly.
- 4 The elephant trumpeted anxiously.
- 5 We finished our sums easily.
- 6 I smiled sweetly at my aunt.
- 7 The footballer passed the ball cleverly.
- 8 Suddenly it began to rain.
- 9 Angrily I kicked the ball away.
- 10 The girl hurriedly left the room.

Unit 16

The amazing moving plant

Whilst exploring the planet Venus a group of scientists discover water – and a plant that glows fiery red and can move! The problem is that it is moving towards them at quite a speed!

‘We can’t go any further,’ said Jerry Garfield.

He stopped the engines of the scout car. They were not far from the South Pole on the planet of Venus. In front of them, there was a high cliff. The car could not climb the rocky cliff.

‘We’ll have to go back,’ Jerry said to the others.

The other two men were scientists. They wanted to explore the South Pole of Venus. They did not want to go back. Hutchins looked carefully at the cliff through his binoculars.

‘Look!’ he said. ‘Do you see that?’

Coleman looked through the binoculars.

‘At one time, water has run down that cliff,’ said Hutchins. ‘We’re looking at a dried-up waterfall! I was right. There are rivers on Venus.’ He was very excited.

‘How can there be any rivers?’ asked Jerry. ‘There’s no water on Venus. It’s too hot on this planet for rain to fall. There’s no water here at all.’

‘Up on the cliff, near the South Pole, it will be cold enough for rain to fall. We must get up there. If there is water, perhaps there will be something living in it.’

‘But we can’t get up there in the car,’ said Jerry.

‘We’ll have to leave the car and climb the cliff,’ said Hutchins.

Coleman stayed behind and Hutchins and Jerry set off for the cliffs. It was hard work. The temperature outside was two hundred and thirty degrees. They had to wear their refrigerated spacesuits, and they had to carry scientific equipment.

As they climbed, the green light of Venus shone around them. At the top of the cliff, the ground became flat. They could see the marks of dried-up rivers. They walked on and on. Jerry began to feel afraid, but Hutchins was excited. He stopped to collect pieces of rock.

'It's getting colder,' Hutchins said. 'My instruments tell me that there must be oxygen in the atmosphere.'

'What does that mean?' asked Jerry.

'That means there are plants here,' explained Hutchins. 'Plants make oxygen. That means that there is life on Venus. It is not a dead planet.'

They went on. Jerry felt more and more unhappy. He did not like the place at all. The green light made the place strange and frightening.

Suddenly Hutchins stopped.

'What's the matter?' asked Jerry.

'Look at that rock,' said Hutchins. 'It's growing. It's growing bigger and it's moving.'

Jerry looked at the rock. The dark shape moved. It was coming towards them. Hutchins watched through the binoculars. The rock crept closer and closer. When it was about a hundred yards away from them, Jerry spoke.

'What is it?' he asked. 'It's a plant of some kind,' said Hutchins.

'But it's moving! Plants can't move!'

'Yes, they can,' said Hutchins. 'There are plants on Earth that move. But very slowly. This one certainly moves fast!'

The plant was like a thick, black, soft carpet. It moved silently towards them. Then about ten feet away from them, it stopped. Hutchins stepped forward. The plant moved back.

'It can feel the heat from our spacesuits,' said Hutchins. He took out his torch. 'Does it feel light, too?'

When he switched on the torch, both men cried out in astonishment. In the green light of Venus the plant looked black. In the white light of the torch, the plant was fiery red and gold. It was like a beautiful carpet.

Hutchins wanted to examine the plant more closely ...

Unit 17

The wind

What do you like about the wind? What do you dislike about it?

Who has seen the wind?

Who has seen the wind?

Neither I nor you:

But when the leaves hang trembling

The wind is passing through.

Who has seen the wind?

Neither you nor I:

But when the trees bow their heads

The wind is passing by.

Christina Rossetti

Windy Nights

Whenever the moon and stars are set
Whenever the wind is high,
All night long in the dark and wet,
A man goes riding by.

Late in the night when the fires are out,
Why does he gallop and gallop about?

Whenever the trees are crying aloud,
And ships are tossed at sea,
By, on the highway, low and loud,
By at a gallop goes he.

By at the gallop he goes, and then
By he comes back at the gallop again.

Robert Louis Stevenson

Unit 18 Play safely

We all enjoy relaxing. It is healthy to get in the fresh air and enjoy yourselves – but be careful because there are dangers to consider! What dangers can you think of?

Road safety

Never play on, or near, a busy road. Remember these road safety rules when you cross a road:

ROAD SAFETY RULES TO REMEMBER

- Choose a place to cross.
- Do not cross between parked cars.
- Look and listen until it is safe to cross.
- Walk straight across the road.
- Keep looking and listening.
 - Do not run.

Broken glass and rubbish

Rubbish dumps are not good places to play. Broken glass and rusty tins can give you bad cuts. Some people even dump poisonous chemicals on rubbish tips. These could kill you. Never try to eat or drink anything you find. It could harm you.

Fire

Fires can help us but they are also dangerous. If you play with them they can harm you. Don't fool around with fire. It can soon get out of hand. If you play near a fire you could get burnt. Never play with matches, or set fire to rubbish.

Electricity

Like fire, electricity helps us but if you play about with it you could hurt yourself. The problem is that you can't see electricity. You do not even have to touch anything to be in danger. Electricity can jump through the air, like a flash of lightning.

Water

We need water to live. We drink it and wash in it. It is fun to play in – but it can be dangerous, so take care! If you cannot swim, don't play near water. In ponds and lakes water can be very deep. In rivers and the sea, the force of water can be very strong, and may even be dangerous for good swimmers. Sometimes you cannot see what is in the water. Some people dump rubbish and broken glass in it. Sometimes chemicals or sewage are dumped in rivers. These can make you ill. Sometimes the wildlife in water is dangerous too!

TEXT LEVEL

Unit 19

Dinosaur days

How many types of dinosaurs can you name?

How do we know about dinosaurs?

Scientists learn about dinosaurs by studying their bones. These bones have been buried for millions of years and they have turned to stone. They are called fossils and they tell us what the world was like millions of years ago. Scientists are like detectives. They look for clues and slowly put together the evidence. The first dinosaur bones were discovered in 1818.

When did dinosaurs live?

Dinosaurs lived millions of years ago. There are no dinosaurs alive today. No-one has ever seen a live dinosaur. When dinosaurs were alive, the earth was a very different place. The weather was much warmer and the land was covered with forests. There were no animals, such as cows or horses, like the ones we know today. There were no houses, no cars and there was no television.

What were dinosaurs like?

There were thousands of different sorts of dinosaurs. They came in all shapes and sizes. Some people think all dinosaurs were huge creatures. This is not true. Of course there were some enormous dinosaurs. These were the biggest animals which have ever lived. But some were very small, too. Some were as small as cats. Most dinosaurs were not very clever. Even the biggest dinosaurs only had small brains. Some dinosaurs had long necks with heavy bodies, and walked on all fours. Others walked on two strong back legs and had two short front legs with sharp claws. Some dinosaurs had long tails and horns. Many had skins that were as tough as armour.

What type of animals were dinosaurs?

Dinosaurs were reptiles. The word 'dinosaur' actually means 'terrible lizard'. There are reptiles living today, such as snakes and crocodiles. Dinosaurs, like all reptiles, had scales on their bodies. They did not have fur or feathers. They laid eggs and breathed with lungs.

What did dinosaurs eat?

Some dinosaurs ate only plants. They were often heavy, slow-moving creatures. Many of them spent a lot of time in water because the water helped to hold them up. It also prevented their enemies from attacking them. Other dinosaurs were meat-eaters. They hunted for their food. These dinosaurs were fierce fighters with sharp claws and teeth for catching, holding and tearing food.

Why did the dinosaurs die out?

Some scientists believe that the climate gradually changed. They believe that the weather changed from warm to cold. Many of the plants that the dinosaurs needed disappeared. Some scientists believe that dinosaurs were not able to adapt to changes in the environment. They did not like the cold weather and they could not find enough to eat, so they died.

Unit 20

A night in the jungle

Do some noises in the night scare you? What noises would you hear if you spent a night in the jungle?

We moved on into the jungle. Old Mali went in front carrying his axe and I followed close behind him. The path was covered over with branches and bushes. I had no idea where I was.

We stopped for the night about an hour before it began to get dark. We put our bags on the ground in a small clearing.

Old Mali lit a fire. When it was alight he showed me how to make a bed with moss. It was soft and comfortable.

'Mali,' I said. 'This bed is more comfortable than my bed at home.'

Old Mali just laughed quietly in reply.

'But how did you learn to make such a bed, Mali?' I asked.

'I learned to make beds like that,' Mali replied, 'by watching and listening to others. That is the real way to learn anything.'

'Will you let me watch you always?' I asked Old Mali. 'I want to learn all the things you know about the jungle.'

‘We must have some large pieces of wood for a fire,’ Old Mali said. ‘They last longer and the fire must stay lit all night. We must have a fire to keep away any animals that come near. All animals are afraid of fire.’

It was almost dark by the time we had collected a huge pile of firewood.

When we had finished our supper, Old Mali got onto his bed and lay down. It was now completely dark. In the firelight Old Mali seemed to be fast asleep on his bed. I suddenly felt alone and afraid.

All day in the jungle, while we had been walking, I had heard noises of animals. Now they seemed to be much nearer. The jungle was now a wall of blackness in the light of the fire.

I felt frightened and suddenly my mouth went dry. I wanted to scream. I felt my mouth opening wide, ready to scream as loud as possible.

But I did not scream. I saw Old Mali’s face in the firelight. This made me feel ashamed. I held my teeth tightly together to stop myself from screaming. I lay down on my comfortable bed and closed my eyes.

As soon as I closed my eyes, I heard a thousand noises. The whole jungle became alive with animals creeping all around me. Suddenly Old Mali took a deep breath and made a noise. I was hearing so many imaginary noises and the real noise made by Old Mali gave me a terrible fright.

I opened my eyes and jumped out of bed. I pulled my kukri out and held it above my head. I was sure I was going to see a wild animal beside the fire.

All I saw was Old Mali, who was now lying on his side with his eyes wide open.

'Hello, what is this, then?' he asked, when he saw me on my feet beside the fire with my kukri in my hand.

'Oh, Mali,' I whispered thankfully, 'you are awake now!'

'Yes,' replied Old Mali, 'I must have fallen asleep for a few moments. And what are you doing with your knife out?'

'You made a noise in your sleep,' I replied. 'I did not know what the noise was and I jumped out of bed to find out.'

'Well, you can put your knife away now,' said Old Mali quietly and calmly. 'It is time to go to sleep. You have a long day ahead of you tomorrow.'

Old Mali's quiet calm voice made me feel better. I got back into bed and lay down. I closed my eyes and, knowing Old Mali was watching, I soon fell fast asleep.
